

Speakeasy Solutions Strives for Ideal Match between Dragon[®] Medical Practice Edition and EMRs

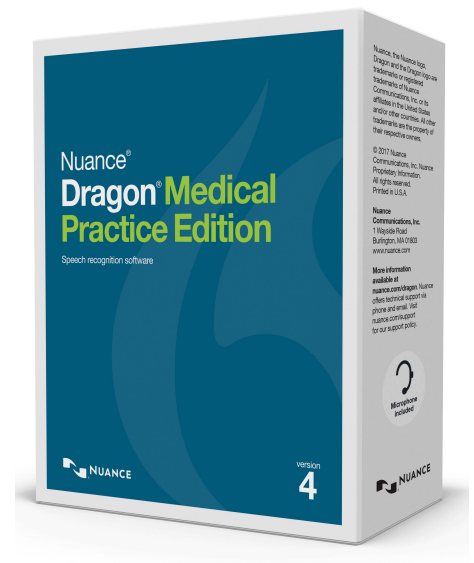

Latest version of Nuance[®] speech recognition technology provides exceptional productivity for healthcare professionals.

The two founders of Speakeasy Solutions realized years ago that Dragon speech recognition products were well-suited for a particular audience within their overall client base: disabled professionals like themselves who cannot type using a traditional keyboard, or are less productive when doing so. Their own experience proved that the software would enable them to get more done in a day's work than they ever could before. As the efficiency and capacity of the products, as well as demand, have expanded since then, so have Speakeasy Solutions' operations, which now include a broad range of digital dictation, transcription, and speech recognition solutions for medical, legal, and business professionals throughout Canada.

Since the introduction of Dragon Medical Practice Edition, Speakeasy Solutions has focused their efforts on analyzing which method of the speech recognition software is most effective with the various electronic health record (EHR) systems that are used in Canada. Depending on the client, the Speakeasy Solutions team has learned that these methods can vary among direct dictation, use of the dictation box, use of the hidden mode, and even dictating in DragonPad and then copying and pasting. With the latest version of Dragon Medical Practice Edition from Nuance, they can create client-customized commands for easier navigation in an hour or less.

The Speakeasy Solutions team enjoys partnering their clients with Dragon Medical Practice Edition because they know it makes good business sense for their daily operations and EHR management. Speakeasy Solutions typically demonstrates the productivity benefits of the software to clients using MedAccess, MOIS, Plexia, and Accuro EHR programs.

“Accuracy and the ability to document with more detail are the best features of Dragon Practice Medical Edition,” says Alexandria Carstens. “That means our clients are able to accomplish more in less time and can leave the office at a reasonable hour.”

Speakeasy Solutions relies on their own beneficial partnership with eDist, a solutions provider for independent resellers, to ensure reliable and streamlined distribution of the highest quality digital dictation, transcription, and speech recognition products throughout Canada.

Designed for medical practices with fewer than 24 physicians, Dragon Medical Practice Edition can increase overall productiveness for medical professionals and can successfully enable faster dictation than ever before with 99 percent effectiveness.
